Health workforce migration in China

PRC has a serious shortage of health professionals. The overall educational level of the health professionals is not high. There is a shortage of high-end medical professionals while those with less than a bachelor's degree accounting for more than 50% of the total. (Shanghai Health and Health Development Research Center, 2021) The most urgent shortage is GPs. The number of GPs per 10,000 population in PRC is 3.08 in 2021. (World Bank, 2022) Chinese people who go abroad to engage in medical activities are mainly concentrated in developed countries such as the United States, Australia, Singapore and Canada. (People's Health Press, 2011)
